AREA DESIGNER BECOMES CERTIFIED

Shelia Jones, of Delaney Interiors, in Norfolk, VA, announced that she earned certification as an Associate Kitchen & Bath Designer (AKBD) from the National Kitchen & Bath Association (NKBA) on May 1st 2008.

Certified Designers must undergo a rigorous process to qualify for certification. They must demonstrate a set number of years of experience in the industry, pass an intensive, comprehensive examination to prove their competency, adhere to a strict Code of Professional Conduct, and must continually further their education by earning Continuing Education Units (CEUs). They must abide by the certification Policies and Procedures as set forth by the Board of Directors and must annually register with the National Kitchen & Bath Association.

Only individuals who have met these requirements can call themselves “certified” in kitchen & bath design. They alone are entitled to the term “Associate Kitchen & Bath Designer.” These individuals have proven themselves to be not only exemplary designers, but exceptional professionals, who demonstrate the utmost dedication to the kitchen & bath industry.

For more information about AKBDs, contact the NKBA’s Customer Service Department at 687 Willow Grove Street, Hackettstown, NJ 07840. Call 800.843.6522 or fax 908.852.1695.
